PRESS RELEASE n.2 on November 16, 2013

“It will be the greatest World Conference organized by UNESCO” said Professor Amnon Carmi, UNESCO Chair in Bioethics Holder. The event “BIOETHICS, MEDICAL ETHICS & HEALTH LAW” will take place at Royal Continental Congress Center in Naples, Italy, on November, 19-21.

It will not be as other conferences: among 1300 participants, 800 speakers (all severely selected by an international scientific committee) 200 scientific sessions. It will be possible to exchange reciprocally of knowledges and experiences. For the first time new followers will compare with very famous professors.

“Each person will go back to his own country with new ideas, proposals and projects for the future” explained Prof. Carmi today during the press conference. A great meeting of energies, knowledge and enthusiasm.

The participants are coming from 64 nations and so the Naples Conference will put face to face very different Worlds and Cultures sometimes poles apart.

The first goal of UNESCO is to plant the ethical values into the soul of the people and into their daily life and behavior.

This task may be and should be realized by two different tools: an educational and a legal one.

The Naples Conference, as Professor Carmi said, will function and serve as the bioethical lighthouse for the next generation.
